

BONNIE MANN – Biography

Art is my passion. My childhood was spent with four siblings in a wonderful home full of love and laughter. I always had access to water color paints and crayons and paper upon which to create, even if it was the side of a cardboard box. My favorite subjects in school were art and music. But art was where I found my joy.

After retiring from the corporate world, I began to devote more and more of my time to painting, along with entering art shows and approaching galleries. I quickly became involved with local artists and galleries and my work started to sell. I am currently a participating artist and co-owner of Carriage House Gallery in Boerne, Texas. I am a member of Oil Painters of America, American Women Artists, Boerne Professional Artists, and River Art Group.

My next step in my pursuit of art was to build a studio on my property in the Texas hill country, a space devoted to creating and teaching as the opportunity arises. I have recently completed my studio and I spend countless hours planning and creating my next painting. In each still life or landscape painting I strive to convey the beauty that I see in the world around me. I invite the viewer on a journey to explore the world of color, light and form. I want to tell a story with each painting but I invite the viewer to finish the story.

Art is my therapy of choice. I seek it daily. It fills my heart and soul.
